m. On 17 January, representatives from the Office of Personnel attended an employee benefits legislation presentation at the Washington office of Mutual of Omaha. The presentations updated attendees on employee benefits issues to be considered by the Congress this year. Updates and predictions of happenings were made on: former spousal legislation, open season health insurance plans, the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program, supplemental retirement and the present retirement systems, and flexible benefits programs. While it is clear that retirement legislation is a major issue, the House will be spending a significant amount of time attempting to equate health benefits coverage for U. S. Government employees with the private sector.

3. Significant activities anticipated during the coming week:

On Friday morning, 1 February, the DDA will address the first graduating class of Security Protective Officers from the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center at Glynco, Georgia.

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER
WEEKLY REPORT FOR THE DCI

25 January 1985

1986

- In anticipation of the upcoming congressional hearings on our FY86 program, we are beginning to pull together the necessary background material needed to prepare the Executive Director for his testimony. The IC Staff scheduled a meeting for Tuesday morning to discuss this subject, as well as scheduling for 1987 program and budget preparation.

1987

- All four directorates submitted one-page descriptions of activities they wish to be considered as new initiatives in 1987. This office will review these requests next week and meet with the Deputies 12 February to discuss the results. The directorates will then submit comprehensive supporting paperwork only for those initiatives that seem likely to make the program.

Congressional Relations

- On 25 January, we hosted a briefing for key SSCI staff on worldwide activities in covert action. All DO divisions participated.

DCI WEEKLY REPORT

PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

PAO Activities

As 1985 begins, we are taking a new look at our multi-media show "CIA and Its People." Unlike the previous production, the majority of the show's updating will be done in-house by P&PD whose videotaping capabilities have improved greatly in the last few years. The show is shown to academic, community, and other public groups. It does not duplicate recruitment's new film but instead can be used by recruiters as an alternate presentation, one which goes into more depth concerning the intelligence collection and production cycle.

We are also developing a question and answer flyer, ultimately to be a booklet, about the Agency. In it we will have some of the most egregious and damaging of the misinformation concerning the Agency which is circulating publicly and correct some of these skewed impressions of our missions and activities. We will also throw in some questions and answers helpful to our recruitment effort. We will vet it thoroughly before going to press with, STAT among others, John McMahon and [redacted]

Finally, we are updating "CIA Publications Released to the Public." This document was last revised and issued in May of 1982 and contains an index of documents dating from 1972-1981. It has been available from the Government Printing Office (GPO) and the National Technical Information Service (NTIS). We feel the new book, which will be available to the public in March 1985, will not only improve our public image, but will speed up our internal handling of requests.

The [redacted] report on how to find ways and means to develop additional case officers is now complete and will be forwarded to the DCI next week. Essentially, we believe there are enough different programs currently in place to achieve desired results, but greater effort needs to be made to ensure that all of these programs move forward with the same speed and emphasis. We found, for example, that when a large backlog of CT applicant files built up, we essentially stopped our advertising. The net result of this was that the engine ran out of steam and had to be restarted -- in the meantime we ran out of applicant files. There are enough current and new initiatives in place which we should allow enough time -- possibly one year -- to see if this total sustained effort will produce desired results.

On 16 January two of our people attended a workshop on OIG Self-Evaluation: Assessing our Efficiency and Effectiveness, sponsored by the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency Training Committee. While a number of ideas about how to evaluate our work were discussed, the only one which seemed to have the broadest support was to conduct mini-reinspections of components to determine if any changes were made as a result of the original survey. This Training Committee will publish a brochure on the subject of self-evaluation in the near future.
